

LEAD 343 Dimensions of Spirituality in Leadership

3 credits

Catalog Course Description: Students will explore their own relationship with their world and sense of spirituality, life course, and leadership knowledge while searching for meaning and purpose of actions and decisions.

Syllabus Course Description: This course will explore the roles of spirituality, religion, and secularity in relation to leadership development, theory, and fostering student leaders. A solid foundation for the concept of mind, body, and spirit will be aid in order to build upon one's personal leadership identity development. The relationship between leadership, diversity, and personal growth will be compared to the lived experiences of the individual in relation to spirituality, religion, and secularity.

Syllabus Learning Outcomes:

Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to:

1. Identify the difference between spirituality and religion as it relates to leadership roles within society
2. Analyze and apply different methods of spiritual growth in their daily lives, with the goal of building their leadership abilities
3. Explore diverse spiritual beliefs and values in order to reflect an understanding of spirituality
4. Compose and re-articulate their personal stories across the past, present, and future in relation to spirituality
5. Articulate the relationship they see between spirituality and leadership

Prerequisites: N/A